Preston Hall '02,
Jonas Beaubrun '01, and Mark Wynegar '02 play for the students in the new Down Under. Since the opening of the new campust center, students used it to its fullest potential.

ROC games have become an activity for all to enjoy.
Nathan DeJong '01 climbs

Lawn during the last go around of the ROC games for '99.

Lavender Sky

by Kathryn M. Curley

Lavender Sky

But the sky nearest the sun is peach and pale yellow.

The clouds are a shade darker than the sky.

Thinker clouds near the sun pass it quickly

Alternating light and shade

The sun itself is blinding white

Intensely shinning, fighting through the clouds

A sullen sunset

Pensive, gloomy, gothic end to the day.

Like the end of cloudy Sundays in a castle

But it's Wednesday, and I'm in the Library.

The beautiful, new campus center proves to be a great place to take pictures.
Jon Titone
'99, Ashley Ohlman '02,
Bessie
Newman '02,
Tiffany Scott
'01, Jen Costanzo '02, and Laura Ochs '02 all strut their stuff for the camera.

As we strolled through the campus, passing friends, professors, and visitors, the sun rose over the lake and shined over the buildings. Even when we were running late for a class, stessing over an exam, or missing loved ones back home, the sun was a constant reminder that there is a light that would always illuminate our days. With each new day and accomplishmens met, our perspective brightened as we realized we had seasons in the sun.

Lindsay Copp '01 tries her hand at the drums during a circle to dedicate the new campus center. Knowing how to play the drums gained popularity. Many participated in the drum circles sponsored by ROC.

Heat and humidity. The rays shined down on us as we played our way through the hot Florida summer. While the rest of the country flocked towards the fun and sun of our beaches and attractions, we didn't have to go far in search of excitement. A new year whirled in with a continuation of the liveliness and spirit that defined a Rollins summer.

After months of pursuing different options, students come together again to rejuvenate friendships and a sense of unity.

SUMMER in the SUN

orien^{tation}

August 22nd welcomed the biggest freshmen class ever admitted to Rollins; the class of 2002.

Sandy Saccullo '02 (top left) moves into McKean with the help of her parents. McKean was crowded with parents, students, and other family members, and facility management men helping students move furniture, rearrange rooms, and assisting with the whole process.

Sasha Heller '02 (top right) arriving on campus, moving into Pinehurst. "I really enjoyed Orientation because I was able to meet people and it threw me right into college. However, at the same time, it was sad because it was the ending of living at home," said Sasha.

(Right) Freshman and parents moving into Ward Hall, and waiting to get into the elevator to bring up the next load.

FRESHMEN ORIENTATION was a week full of excitement, energy, and activities. Freshmen were all over campus, busily doing activities such as listening to a comedian and seeing a hypnotist, participating in the Candle Wish ceremony, Playfair, and the Student Talent Show. It was a little overwhelming for some, but a great overall chance for students to meet other students and get used to their new environment. - Bessie Newman and Ashley Ohlman

Students participate in the Candlewish Ceremony during Orientation. Freshmen were required to attend this traditional event.

Julia Boguslawski '01 acts as peer mentor for Dr. Boles RCC class. "Freshman orientation is a great way to meet new students. Everyone's lost and confused and our job as peer mentors is to let everyone know it's going to be okay," said Julia.

With the help of the Resident Assistants, students get checked into their rooms. Hall director Beth Raptis '99 at far left helps check-in students for McKean Hall.

CLASSES ARE OUT AND IT'S TIME FOR freedom

Classes can be so stressful and sometimes we just had to break away for some well needed downtime

Jennie Zelenak '00 (top left) relaxes at the coffee house that was sponsored by Intervarsity. Jennie found that relaxing and having fun were a good combo.

Lindsey Elkin '00 (top right) reads her poetry to her peers. She used her poetry to escape from the real world and relax.

Issa Cohen '99 (right) juggles some bowling pins, trying to rid some of the daily stress that Rollins puts on us all. Finding an activity that one could enjoy allowed students to take a break from studying.

"Down time, what is that?" Students at Rollins found time to break away from the studying and the homework to explore their levels of enjoyment. Leisure activities ranged from reading, frisbee, campus golf, to just sitting with your friends and laughing. College can be a demanding time in a students life, but thankfully we were all able to find an activity to rid some stress. - Chrissy Kadinger

Rachel Gramer '00 takes a break from her studies to read a book in the sun. Students found different places on campus to relax and unwind.

BBQ's were popular among the student body. They provided free food that wasn't Beans, and also a time to break from the usual. Students socialize outside of ROC during a BBQ.

Noel Mack '01 enjoys a night of Cosmic Bowling with her friends. Local bowling alley's allowed students an alternative to the usual study break.

study abroad

Students wanting to learn about different cultures, help others in need, or perform research projects participate in study abroad programs

Maria Figueroa '99 and Natalie Smith '99 (top left) stand in front of the Alhambra in Granada, Spain. Their trip allowed them to visit historic sites and immerse themselves in the Spanish culture.

Luisa Valdes '01 (top right) poses in front of Ayer's Rock in the Northern Territory of Australia. She went to Australia for a semester as part of her Australian Studies minor. "Someday I'd like to go back and stay longer," said Luisa.

Kristin Dolina-Adamezyk '99, E.A. Rose '01, and Luisa Valdes '01 (right) cuddle a koala in Wild World, a petting zoo in Queensland, Australia.

down under taking off. Each semester, Rollins students had the opportunity to broaden their horizons by participating in study abroad programs. Semesters in Europe, service learning trips to third world countries, and travel laboratories to the Pacific all provided students with extraordinary hands-on learning experiences. Maria Figueroa '99, who spent a semester in Sevilla, Spain said, "There is so much to do and everything is new. You are constantly learning." - M. & S.

Afanador

Nic Roberts '99 and Lara Printz '99 share a hug at the Eiffel Tower in Paris, France.

The Marine Biology of the Pacific class visit the Akaka Falls on the island of Hawaii. As part of this travel lab, students collected and analysed marine specimens.

Students from the service learning trip to the Dominican Republic sit in front of a monument in Santiago. These students participated in building projects and helped the people of La Quebrada, a Dominican village.

individuality

To live without regrets can cause some mental stress, but an individual will always be themselves, without regret

Chris Howe '01 (top left) was known on campus for being an individual. His motto was stated, "Live life to the fullest, or why be here?"

Dan Ocasio '00 (top right) played the guitar for his peers at a coffee house get together.

Chrissy Kadinger '01 (right) smiles during a spur of the moment photo shoot with a friend. Her thought on being an individual was, "If it makes you happy, do it. Who cares what everyone else thinks!"

"If we weren't all different, we would be the same."

Being an individual can be a challenge sometimes. Especially at college! There will always be those that we admire for being able to do what makes them happy without regrets. It is hard to break free from the norms, but those that do are always the ones who we will remember for being themselves and making their own name in the world. - Chrissy Kadinger Surfing indoors? Daniel Blair '01 shows his style on the ping-pong table in the Holt basement. Daniel was known to have his own style without regrets.

Jessica Woolard '00 poses as a frog during ROC games '99. ROC allowed people to be whoever they wanted without regrets.

Expressing yourself through poetry is one way to show your true self. Tamika Gainer '99 reads a poem at the Unity Fest that she wrote.

Student D.J.'s took control of the radio waves daily at WPRK, with shows playing everything from hip-hop to reggae to jazz.

John Goss '00 (top right) does his thing down in the studios.

Jesse Haga '02 (right) intently studies the library of CD's to make a decision about what to play next on his show. Jesse's freeform show aired at 8pm on Wednesday nights.

playin' tunes

underground For forty-six years and counting, WPRK has been an important fixture on the Rollins campus and the community. Located in the basement of the Mills building, the station plays rock, ska, reggae, hip-hop, dance, jazz, blues, world music, and all-out free-form. There are also call-in shows, a radio theatre program, Rollins sports broadcasts, and the live local band showcase WPRK Comes Alive. WPRK is mainly student-run and focuses on educating Rollins in the musical genres ignored by local stations.

Chris Kahl and his band warm up before going on air. Lead guitarist Ben Scott '99, vocals and rhythm Chris Kahl, Marty Osterer '00 on bass, and Damian Caracelo with drums played a variety of shows around Orlando with the sound help of Paul Schick '99.

Lara Printz '99 plays dueling guitars with her friend Gary.

"The WPRK bumper stickers are everywhere . . . they're following me!"- Lindsey Elkin '01

The Seniors entered single file with every expression from happiness to fear. They sat and waited through the speeches and the announcing of one another until it was their turn to receive their own diploma.

graduation

Graduation came not a moment too soon for some seniors, while others tried to hold onto every minute for eternity.

class of 1999 The Ceremony was a joyous celebration for all who attended. Friends and family gathered to watch those that they knew walk across the stage and receive their diplomas. The Valedictorian spoke of making sure they took time for others in this busy world and to not be afraid of what was out there. This was the last class that would graduate in the Field House for the Century. While there were some tears shed, all knew it was time to leave Rollins.

Still summer? Few leaves changed colors and not many cold winds rolled in, but technically fall had arrived. The common preception of the year being one long summer with only a couple days for each season held true. Yet, despite the unnoticable change of weather, other changes came as we adjusted to the surrondings and new routines.

Patterns arise, friendships grow, clubs organize, and life becomes a little more comfortable as the school year gets in to full swing.

FALL in the SUN

activities fair

Students attended the Activities Fair for an afternoon of free food and fun. Activities included playing lazer tag and racing on the bungi-run.

Roland Wellington '01 (top left) president of StarTrek: Rollins College, recruits new trekies for the club. Members of the club watched StarTrek episodes and followed them with discussions.

Raejeana Gilmore '00 (top right) recruits members for Voices for Women at the activities fair. The Voices table contained pictures for students to look at as well as a few goodies for them to take.

Bridget Conway '00 and Nic Roberts '99 dressed as Star Trek figures to promote this year's Student Activities Fair. The theme was to achieve an "out of this world year" with clubs and organizations.

star finders

meet the clubs The Student Activities Fair is designed to introduce students to the various clubs and organizations that exist on campus. This event, held in the field house, allows students to get a feel for what each organization is about, and allows the organizations to recruit new members. Incentives included free food, games, and prizes. The event also showcases some local businesses from the Winter Park area.

And they're off! Students, including Derek Luyten '02 and Chrissy Kadinger '01, participated in events such as the 'bungie-run'.

A representative from Kappa Alpha Theta shows some pictures to another student. Different groups brought in photo albums to encourage new membership.

Ryan Carrol '01 representing Alpha Tau Omega shows off his fraternity to some friends.

Time to get moving! The group warms up out on the beach before getting down to the different sessions.

Chrissy Kadinger '01 and Nie Roberts '99 take a break to "floor dance." The group had breaks between sessions and many took time to rest or unwind in some way.

Streeetch! Bridgett Conway '00 and Daniel Blair '02 do some morning aerobics on the beach.

leadership

Students from many organizations participated in the Fall Leadership retreat. It was a success in the eyes of all.

leading time leading on Many students took the opportunity to increase their skills in the area of leadership at the fall leadership retreat. The retreat took place on the beach in Melbourne. The group learned the different skills held by each person present. They discovered both their leader type and personality type. Different groups came together during this student-run activity to figure out ways to make Rollins a better community for all.

Alexa King '99 (top left) speaks of Martin Luther King Jr. for her group's project.

Jen Jordan '01 (top right) tells the group of different leadership skills that people have. Groups were given a person to speak about during the session.

Greg Babcock '02 and Jessie Haga '02 (right) act out a story of how leadership skills are used during a crisis.

Bessie Newman '02, Colleen Arcand '00, Todd Kubicki '02, and Lina Strimavicius help out at the registration table. They all greeted the trick-or-treaters as they arrived and assigned them to the tour groups.

In Pinehurst Cottage, Emily Gill '99 holds out a bowl of "brains" for a trickortreater to put her hand into. Pinehurst was one of the many residence halls that participated in the event by creating a haunted house.

Alexa King '99, Scott Filter '02, and Christine Conte '00 help kids play carnival games on Mills Lawn.

halloween howl

Spooky fun

trick-or-treat Pumpkins, costumes, candy, and kids meant only one thing: time for Halloween Howl! The activities of the day also included carnival games on Mills Lawn and a clown show. As Martha Lewis '99, who organized the event, said, "What made Halloween Howl such a success was the incredible support from over 50 campus organizations and the creativity and dedication of more than 140 Rollins students."

The sixth annual Halloween Howl gave Rollins students the chance to provide a fun and safe halloween for the children of the Winter Park community.

After a stressful morning, Martha Lewis '99 (top left) takes time out to sit with some trick-or-treaters. Her hard work made Halloween Howl a great success.

LeLaina Romero '99 (top right) leads a trick-or-treater into the Pinehurst Cottage. She greeted tour groups and blindfolded them before they entered the house.

Koldo Uriona-Isla '01 (left) gets into the Halloween spirit. He was among many students who chose to dress up for the event.

The cast of "Pippin" pose for a picture after their final performance. The group was full of spirit and excitement throughout all of the performances and it showed.

The cast of the play "House of Blue Leaves" directed by Matt Jasiczek '00 pose for a picture.

Chris Johnson '00 and Emily Gill '00 perform "Shakespeare in the Park" for their acting class.

setting the stage The 67th season of the Annie Russell Theatre proved to be yet another show stopping season for the theatre department. With the performances of Pippin, Enter Laughing, The Bacchae, Charley's Aunt, and House of Blue Leaves, both Rollins and the Winter Park community had much to see. The success of these productions was due to the students' incredible talent and passion for the arts, as well as to great directing and a supportive audience.

Craig Cacciola-Morales '01 (top right) has a look of surprise with the snap of the camera backstage.

Bart Bishop '00 and Jody Coleman '99 strengthen the plot to the play "House of Blue Leaves."

study places

Studying is a big part of campus life and at some point everybody needs a relaxing place to do their work.

Douglas Halmatie (top right) leans back and relaxes as he uses the facilities in the library to get a little studying done.

Derek Luyten '02 and Jen Sachs '01 (right) use the Olin Library to get some studying done.

study time

Studying, and the process of, varied greatly from student to student at Rollins. Some chose to study with soft music and good lighting, some decided upon the silent, hallowed halls and crevices of the Olin Library, and others tried to study alone in their room. Whether it was studying outside on Mills lawn or bringing your books pool-side, the results were usually a good tan and a dose of procrastination.

Tammara Sanchez '02, Tamasin Spengler '01, and Jennifer Clarkson '02 (above) enjoy the sun out by the pool while studying.

The Rollins Women's Cross Country team prides itself on...

setting a pace

Whether it would be at a practice or during a competition, there was always support for the women's cross country team.

The women's team trained hard using a cross training regiment of weightlifting, swimming, and playing ultimate frisbee. Although they had many new runners, this year claimed itself as being one of their best. The women showed themselves as strong and dedicated, both as a team and individually. Through hard work, the team was able to achieve its goals, which included placing among the top ranking teams in the Sunshine State Conference, and qualifying for the Southeast Regional Championships.

crossing the line

The men's team was fairly young this year but what they lacked in experience, they made up for in spirit. Every runner improved because of the difficult practice regiment: early morning weightlifting sessions, long runs ranging from eight to seventeen miles, speed workouts, and even some double sessions. The men's team was hardworking and dedicated which paid off at conferences. Chris Boynton '99, team captain, expressed, "My time with the cross country team was life changing. I learned that patience and persistence pay off. I learned the value of eating healthy and exercising, which resulted in a healthier, happier lifestyle. Being on the team taught me about life, and what it takes to succeed at it."

Kappa has been off to a great start this year with the sophomores becoming more involved. In the fall we focused most of our attention on reaching the Chapter goal in community service and rush. We participated in the Greek Games and were paired up with TKE.

We were excited to learn that we came in first place.

After Christmas

Break we were in full swing with the anticipation of rush. After many long nights of practice, we pulled through with a full house of 25 new members. As the year is coming to an end we are trying to tie all our loose ends. We are already planning what we are going to do to improve the Greek relationships.

Interns are able to pick a career field they are interested in and spend a semester earning valuable experience in that field. The Tars returned 10 players to their line-up for the 1998-1999 season. Each of these 10 players saw significant playing time last season which helped to propel the team into this season. The team started off well, but struggled after the Winter Break.

Rollins only had one Senior on their team this season. Freddie Johnson, senior and captian, kept the team going when the road got long. "I thought the season went alright, but we may have held our expectations a little too high." Heading into the Sunshine State Conference Tournament the Tars worked hard. However, they lost in the first round. Overall the season was good. The team played many teams that enabled them to improve their skills and also show some skills off.

The women's team had 4 returning starters for the '98-99 season. Their depth from the bench looked to propel the team into the number one spot in the country. The Lady Tars looked to bring their season to great heights and to allow the seniors to go out with a bang. This season would prove to be a new experience for the new girls on the team. The Tars had five new members this year. Two transfers and two freshman allowed for the Tars to prepare for the years ahead as they looked to say good-bye to their seniors. Glenn Wilkes looked to have his 13th season be one that the girls would remember for a lifetime. Wilkes also looked to post another winning season to add to his previous 12.

spirit club

cheering on the tars The Spirit Club sprung out of Community Day with the purpose of carrying out students' goals of reviving tradition and promoting spirit on campus. Throughout various sports seasons, tarpit members promoted school spirit by cheering at athletic events and organizing face paintings, raffles, and prize giveaways. Although the club was fairly new, its members were very energetic and full of innovative ideas to promote spirit on campus.

dancing Swingerhead, a local band, who played downtown at Rat Pack's on Orange Avenue and also at Club Atlantic in Downtown Disney were invited by ACE to play at Dave's Down Under on Friday, January 22nd from 8 - 12am . Swingerhead had the honor of being the first band to play on and inaugurate the stage. At first, only the talented swingers were out on the dance floor, but as the night went on, the beginners paired up with more talented dancers and were out there having fun.

Some things on campus are just not the average everyday thing you would see.

Barbaric (top right), sculpted by Michael Steiner, sits behind Mills building gathering stares. Some call it art, others call it a heap of metal. Whatever it is, it will remain a part of the campus for years to come.

What could it be? There are many things at Rollins that catch your eye and make you take another look. Whether it's a barbaric sculpture, something in the sky, or people just doing strange things, there always seems to be something going on that is slightly odd. These things have made their mark and have become part of the Rollins College life for many students. This is how we know each other and part of what makes Rollins unique.

Spring fever. After recovering from any number of the various colds that went around, the bright clear sky days beckoned us again. The urge to be outside usually came on strongest while sitting in class, so spring break came not a moment too soon. After returning from break time flew by in the rush of classes ending and graduation pressing near.

The school year starts winding down, but the fast pace of life moves on uninhibited. Cool weather drifts away and thoughts turn toward the approaching summer.

break time Students looked forward to spring break, a week of fun and relaxation, for a chance to escape the stress of the spring semester. Several destinations for spring breakers included Miami, Key West, the Bahamas, and even Trinidad. Regardless of how they spent their spring break, students enjoyed their time off from classes. Yet even after a week off, students began looking forward to their next break.

The strength of the rowing team was in the 4+. They posted a strong victory in that event. The women's junior varsity four+ of Brooke Bunte, Deirdre Nealon, Erin Heximer,

Deborah Levy and Nora Beyrent finished six seconds ahead of the second place Tennessee and 11 seconds ahead of third place Florida Tech at the SIRA Championships. At the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia the women's 4+ finished fourth in their semifinal heat. The team had three seniors that made great captains for the women's team. Tamitha Campbell, Lauren Foglia, and Deirdre Nealon all helped to keep the team's energy focused on winning. Dean Hybl

The men's varsity Rowing team showed a good amount of strength this season. They posted some strong victories in their 4+ events. The men's varsity four+ of Adam Albrecht, Liam Casey, Jeff Westover, Gavin Frase, and Tim Stapleton claimed victories in four consecutive races at one point in the season and claimed first place at the SIRA Championships. At the Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia the men's four+ team finished fourth in their semifinal heat. The team had only one senior this year, therefore they will be able to come back strong next year. Dean Hybl

The Tars started the season strong with a 23-13 start and a national ranking that reached as high as 15th. However, after winning four of their first six Sunshine State Conference games, the team struggled in league play before finishing with two wins against Florida Tech in the final week of the season. The season included several outstanding individual performances. Senior A.J. Brack pitched a no-hitter against Madonna and had 15 strikeouts. Juniors Justin Sherrod, Chris Doherty and David Bean set new individual school records. Sherrod broke the career home run record with he hit his 35th career homer against Saint Leo and Doherty tied the pitching record of most games started in a season with 18. Bean set two new records as he made 30 pitching appearances and averaged 12.04 strikeouts per nine innings. Dean Hybl
